Additional Information

After specializing during my studies in France and in the United Kingdom in human rights, I was admitted to the Luxembourg Bar in June 2016. In 2020, I decided to establish myself as an independent barrister, focusing on human rights cases. In my daily work, I concentrate mainly on criminal law, family law and immigration law. My aim is to focus on fundamental rights on a daily basis and to put the national and international human rights charters into practice.

As an active member of the Luxembourg Association of criminal law barristers, I am also particularly alert to potential human rights violation within criminal law matters.

I became a member of the Consultative Commission for Human Rights in Luxemburg in 2019 and was elected as Vice-President in 2020. The Consultative Commission for Human Rights advises the Government on general questions relating to human rights. Within the Commission, we elaborate opinions, communiqués and reports, on the Commission's own initiative or at the Government's request.
