

Example of SLCP Adoption: Brooks Running

“In 2021, Brooks fully adopted SLCP’s Converged Assessment Framework (CAF) to assess social responsibility throughout our manufacturing supply chain. Although this adoption was a significant change to our traditional auditing approach, we’re committed to using this tool to reduce audit fatigue and work together with our industry peers to use one data set to make a positive impact on the workers in our supply chains.”

What benefits does Brooks experience using SLCP?

Allows Brooks to evaluate compliance with Code of Conduct and local and national laws and regulations.

Provides a framework for factories to implement advanced social and labor practices focused on worker empowerment.

Believes that an industry-wide, collaborative effort to reduce audit fatigue is key to improving labor conditions in factories across the globe.

In 2021:

60% of in-scope Tier 1 and Tier 2 factories transitioned from a traditional audit approach to using the Higg FSLM which is based on SLCP’s Converged Assessment Framework (CAF).

100%

Goal for 2022

Hopes for the next stages of SLCP:

More brands to adopt SLCP

- to be able to use one data set across shared factories
- and dedicate more time to advancing worker well-being
