Hospital Programs for Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome

COLLEGE OF MEDICINE TUCSON

Pediatrics

Family Centered NAS Care Program at Banner - UMC

Family Centered NAS Care (FC-NAS) focuses on the mother as the treatment for the infant. With this new method, infants can go home in approximately 5 to 10 days. FC-NAS uses MOM or “Moms Over Medicine” model. You are the treatment for your baby.

This program is run by a neonatal team of specialists that includes doctors and nurse practitioners, nurses, therapists, social workers, and volunteer “cuddlers”, all to back you up while you take care of your baby.

What does the process look like?

- Call to schedule an appointment. A referral can also be made by your physician to Banner University Medical Center Tucson’s OB/GYN department.
- Meet with OB/GYN Social Worker (at 1st or 2nd clinic appointment)
- Meet with Family Centered NAS Care Program Director
- At the time of delivery, inform Labor & Delivery Staff that you are participating in the Family Centered NAS Care Program

Key points about FC-NAS:

- Mother is the treatment

- Staff and family partner to provide the best possible care for the infant
- Mother (or designated family member) stays with the infant the entire hospitalization
- Your baby may require an occasional dose of medicine to help them during difficult times
- Collaboration with community partners such as behavioral health, medication assisted treatment centers, and Department of Child Safety is necessary to ensure a safe plan of care for the infant.

Call to schedule an appointment at 520-694-4525 or 520-694-9904
