Do you foresee any challenges or barriers in applying the guidelines to your organization's context? If so, please specify.

Securing funding and finding an appropriate makers' space to help with implementation

Generally, not concerning the context. But, it depends on the focus group.

For example, addressing the project in refugee and migrant children, the language maybe a barrier and extend the sessions

We will have, eventually, difficulties to locate our Safe Space

The challenges would probably have to do with the different needs, skills and personalities of our beneficiaries.

Not match our top priorities

Maybe that the guideline is quite big and it would take a lot of time to complete the whole thing. But pieces can be applied of course.

What additional support or resources would facilitate the successful implementation of the Trashcycle program guidelines in your organization?

Securing funding and finding an appropriate makers' space to help with implementation

Resources and educational material for circular economy

I did not understand if there would be powerpoints provided. If not, maybe it would help.

Who do you think this program could benefit the most and how?

The people am working with so they can use their fantasy with non cost products and be happy with the results they made

Vulnerable, deprived groups that face social exclusion and economic issues, such as refugee, people with mental health issues, needs, Roma teenagers through the sessions that may be give them an opportunity or another perspective mainly for the professional development.

The program is simple at its core, making it easy to apply in different contexts and people.

Strengthen capacity and social skills of participants

Teenage girls and unemployed women

Organizations that work with youth.

Being centred around youth, young people especially ones aiming to be future entrepreneurs are likely to benefit from this program, all the more if they are somehow excluded in any way

What is unclear about this program?

Activities and concept of the program ARE clear.

How to secure funding and find an appropriate makers' space to help with implementation

Maybe, some more results, data concerning the progress of the beneficiaries with mental health issues.

I believe that the scope is pretty clear but the specific implementation of the steps needs some communication
