No, I don't need your previous change of ownership documents from Corporations, Business, & Professional Licensing (CBPL). I need the change of officials paperwork that will be submitted to CBPL to revert the ownership back to what it was. You will also need to provide proof that the change of officials document was received by CBPL (fax confirmation or CBPL date received stamp).
You'll need to correct the renewal application as well. All documents need to be submitted at the same time, preferably in one e-mail. You will need to submit a transfer application once the renewal application is complete.

Your current license expires 2/28. You will be given a temporary license once your renewal application is complete.

Olivia,

From what I gather what you are looking for is a filing with SOA corporations on the change in ownership? Is there something else needed? The letter says that any application not complete by 2/28 will be expired but the board meeting isn't until March. Does that mean our license will be revoked during the time in between? As I'm sure you are fully aware the pandemic has obliterated our revenue and we cannot afford to close down because of a clerical oversight. We are struggling to make it through the winter as it is. Your help is appreciated.

Thank you,

The next ABC Board meeting is scheduled for March 2021 and the deadline for applications to be deemed complete by an Examiner to be placed on the meeting's agenda is close of business March 12th 2021.

Any application that is still incomplete at midnight on February 28, 2021 will be expired, per AS 04.11.540. Completed documents (except for fingerprint cards or payments) may be scanned and emailed, and questions or concerns may be sent to alcohol.licensing@alaska.gov.
