

Online library of criminal justice resources

May 8, 2024

Introduction

The Alaska Criminal Justice Data Analysis Commission has created a library of online resources for people seeking information about Alaska's criminal justice system. These data sources are free and public. They include dashboards, reports, the Court System's searchable database, CourtView (and links to the appellate courts' case database), and other resources for research on most topics related to criminal justice in Alaska.

The listing of databases and reports is organized by topic, followed by a list of databases/reports organized by source (e.g., state, federal, national organization, local). It is not intended to be exhaustive. Readers/users who have a database or source of reports that they would be interested in adding, or questions about using this listing, please contact the DAC staff at Alaska Judicial Council, postmaster@ajc.state.ak.us.

Databases and reports are organized by topic, followed by a list of databases/reports organized by source (e.g., state, federal, national organization, local)

Alaska Natives

Many reports include information about demographic characteristics, with Alaska Natives (and American Indians) as a separate ethnic group. For example, Dept of Public Safety, Department of Corrections, some Division of Behavioral Health reports, Department of Labor, Alaska Mental health Trust Authority, University of Alaska (Justice Center and Institute for Social and Economic Research), and most Alaska Judicial Council (and ACJC and DAC) reports provide these analyses.

Alaska Native Justice Center and individual corporations, non-profits, and other Native organizations provide information about services, programs, and policies, without data.

Alaska Mental Health Trust Authority beneficiaries; other data about mental health issues

- Alaska Mental health Trust Authority: <https://alaskamentalhealthtrust.org/alaska-mental-health-trust-authority/resources/annual-report/> (annual reports, focused on fiscal accountability and revenues from various sources).
