

Let America be Addiction-Free

By Keyla Rispone

Let America be addiction-free again.
Let it be where it won't tear your family apart
Let it be saving lives not killing them
Seeking safety walking down dark narrow streets

(America once was a place where no one had worry)

Let America be the dream the dreamers dreamed
Let it be that time it was peaceful again
Where once the whole family sat down for holiday dinners

(It never was the same)

O, let my land be land where everyone is sitting around laughing and feeling free again
Is crowned with good memories
Where music is playing and people are dancing

(There's never been a time drugs were not the topic of conversation.)

I am the witness
I am the one who saw
I am the one who got hurt
And finding the way to deal with it

Yet I'm the one who had a family member survive it
Who got their favorite person back
Who knew there was a way to get better
Who had hope like the stars in the night sky
