

WebMD LLC and its affiliates (“WebMD” or “we”), which operate www.MDedge.com (“MDedge”), are committed to providing MDedge users with editorial content that meets the highest journalistic and editorial standards, focusing on fairness, accuracy, independence, transparency, and objectivity. MDedge’s editorial content, including news and features, are developed independently of the advertising and promotional content available on MDedge, all of which is clearly labeled as such in accordance with the WebMD Network Advertising Policy. Third-party editorial content licensed for use on MDedge is held to the same editorial standards as MDedge’s original content.

News & Perspectives

We identify topics for MDedge’s news and perspectives content based on current clinical and professional information needs of physicians and healthcare professionals. This content is produced by a team of seasoned, full-time journalists and editors. Contributing clinical experts collaborate with an experienced team of in-house medical editors on MDedge’s expert perspectives and features content. MDedge editors review all content prior to publication to ensure adherence to our editorial standards, including disclosure of any relevant financial relationships of expert contributors. Further, we do not assign journalists to cover topics in respect of which they have disclosed a financial interest.