Brad KillsCrow, Chief, Delaware Tribe of Indians

As winter is slowly coming to an end and spring time is just around the corner, we embrace this time as a new beginning to our seasons. Many of you will be out in your gardens planning the cultivation of this year's crops and some of you will be taking in the new weather as it gets better. I look forward to what the summer time brings us. We had an opening on the Tribal Council after the resignation of former Councilman Bruce Martin. We advertised and held interviews for several individuals who all have the deepest interests for our people. I thank all those who applied, as I know how important our tribe is to each one of you. I'm pleased to announce the appointment of Shaunda Brooks as our newest Tribal Council Member. Shaunda is the daughter of former councilman Joe Brooks and she is the niece of the late Chief Chet Brooks. Shaunda is well respected in her nursing career and is someone I'm proud to have serving on our Tribal Council.

Again we have continued to maintain all of our current buildings and the latest projects are coming along very well. We renovated the Caney office building which houses our Tribal Court, Tribal Domicile, and our Family and Children's Services. This renovation will allow more space for our Tribal Court and more secure office spaces for our Family and Children Services. Our Lenape Early Learning Center just recently underwent a kitchen renovation that will continue to make this 5-star facility the best environment for our children. Here on campus we just implemented a new Microix software system that will provide our employees and accounting department the ability to make the purchase order process a lot more sufficient.

I am very happy to report that the Tribe's fiscal year 2022 Independent Auditor's Report was released by Arledge Certified Public Accountants. The Tribe received another clean opinion. All of the tribe's financials (including all Grants, Domicile, ARPA, CARES monies) were thoroughly audited for inconsistencies, fraud, misappropriations, and other potential issues. I would like to thank our accounting department for all the hard work that went into this years audit.

On March 8 I traveled with Jeremy Johnson, our Cultural Education Director, to Gnadenhutten, Ohio to attend a ceremony commemorating the anniversary of the Gnadenhutten Massacre. Gnadenhutten is the site of the killing of 96 Lenape Christian Indians by U.S. militiamen. I was also accompanied by Chief Justin Logan, Delaware Nation at Moraviantown, and we were both able to give our prayers and sentiments to our ancestors.

On March 14 I had the privilege to be at the Grand Opening of our new Prevention Support Services. Under this program we now have the ability to address alcohol and drug abuse within our tribe. Sherry Sam-Chouteau is our Director and is overseeing this new program. Sherry had implemented a Talking Circle and a Wellbriety class that is held here on campus. With this program we will be able to send our tribal members to residential treatment facilities so they can get the help they need. If you know somebody that could use these services please contact Sherry here at the tribe.

I would like to remind everyone of the 59th Annual Delaware Pow Wow, May 24, 25, and 26, on the Fall Leaf Family Memorial Pow Wow Grounds in Copan, Oklahoma. This weekend is a homecoming for many of our tribal members. I look forward to the many laughs, food, and conversations that will be had during this weekend. ■

59th Annual Delaware Pow Wow To Be Held May 24-26

The Delaware Pow Wow Committee is looking forward to hosting our 59th Annual Delaware Pow Wow on May 24 – 26 at the Fall Leaf Family Campgrounds in Copan, Oklahoma. In preparation, we will be hosting a Campground Clean Up Weekend on April 27 and 28. We encourage everyone to come out to clean their camp and burn leaves as well as help us clean the common use areas (pow wow arena, concession stand, vendor area, etc.). The committee will provide hamburgers and hot dogs both days at 2 P.M. at the concession stand. We are asking for donations of chips and other sides to add to our "lunch". In case of inclement weather or high winds, we will move the date to May 4 and 5. Currently the gates to the grounds are open seven days a week from 7 A.M. until dark (with the exception of April 12) for permanent campers to work on their camps. Overnight camping begins May 18 and ends June 2. Please remember that burning leaves is not permitted if there is a red flag warning issued for Copan.

Thanks to the Tribal Council, we have new bleachers for the arena. The Council has also removed a number of dead and damaged trees that were posing a risk to camps and the public. We will continue to charge a $25 electrical hookup fee for campers and other vehicles that hook into the electrical outlets on the campgrounds.

The Delaware Pow Wow Committee is an independent non-profit organization with the sole purpose of organizing, managing, and obtaining financial support for the Delaware Pow Wow through an agreement with the Tribal Council. The Committee members are Erica Zunigha, Chairwoman; Linda KillsCrow, Secretary/Treasurer; and members Sydney Gabbard Rose, Walter Dye, Jimmie Johnson, Tony KillsCrow, Alma Welch, Tristen Tucker, Jennifer Dick, Rob Little Axe, and Kilan Jacobs.

Since the Delaware Tribe does not provide funds for the Pow Wow itself, the committee relies on funds generated through the sale of program books, t-shirts, booth space, and at the concession stand. We also need volunteers to help before, during and after the Pow Wow. If you would like to volunteer, please contact Jennifer Dick (918-323-2581) or jenhen28@gmail.com. The success of the Pow Wow relies heavily on the generosity of our tribal members and guests and donations are essential in helping us in covering our operating expenses.

Thank you for your continued support and we will see you in May! ■

From The Desk of Assistant Chief Tonya Anna

Tonya Anna, Assistant Chief

Hé Tribal Members! Sikónatae in Lenape means “flower that blooms in spring”. Spring is about a time of rebirth and revival after going dormant in the winter. On that note, I would like to talk about growth. Our Tribe’s biggest assets are our employees. If we do not invest in the employees, we will remain dormant. Believing firmly in education and professional development gives our employees a chance to grow and better themselves not only professionally, but personally as well. When we empower our employees to be the best that they can, it will bring the best to the Tribe. If we take care of our employees then they have no reason to leave, which brings consistency and resilience. When a person leaves their position with us, I want it to be because they outgrew their position and moved on to bigger things.

My year kicked off by attending the Muscogee Nations Inauguration on January 6, 2024 for Chief David Hill and Del Beaver. The event took place at The Cove River Spirit Casino Resort with a nice luncheon that followed. It was an honor to support another tribal nation and hear how they aided their membership and constituents. They had various guests in attendance and gave away awards. They even presented an award to Sterlin Harjo, Native American filmmaker who directed Reservation Dogs.

For those who listen to the local radio station KWON you may have heard some of our directors promoting their departments and the Tribe. If you missed the Community Connection on KWON visit their Facebook page and locate Delaware Tribe of Indians in their Video album to watch our employees. I feel giving our employees professional development opportunities is one of the best things we can do as an organization. Which brings me to sending our female Directors to Women in Business. This monthly Chamber event gives them an opportunity to network with others in our community, enjoy a delicious lunch, and receive a gift bag and a chance to win door prizes. For a small investment they also get to learn various tools to bring back and utilize with employees.

The Bartlesville Library contacted me to give a talk about the Tribe on January 23. This gave me the opportunity to speak with a tribal member, Katelynn. We have stayed in contact with each other as she wants to be more involved with the tribe. She has a lot to offer so I am excited to see her graduate college to free up some of her time to spend with us! A big Wanishi Katelynn!

On February 8 I was installed as a Board Member for Grand Gateway Economic Development Association after Appellate Judge, Rick Barnes, stepped aside due to health issues. This opportunity is an honor and have already met so many new faces at the first meeting. Grand Gateway EDA is a cooperative created by local governments to serve local governments. They provide a network to identify and solve community issues. We meet every other month, so I am excited to be able to bring back some valuable information in future publications.

As you know, our Food Pantry has partnered with the Eastern Oklahoma Food Bank. Food Pantry Director Sonny Fixico represented the Delaware Tribe of Indians very well. I have watched Sonny grow during his time here at the Tribe. He is not afraid to step outside of his comfort zone and embrace new opportunities. If you ever get a chance and want to volunteer at the Food Bank of Eastern Oklahoma you can call the headquarters in Tulsa at (918) 585-2800. They are located at 1304 N. Kenosha Avenue, Tulsa, OK.

The United Indian Nations of Oklahoma met on March 19 & 20. UINO membership is made up of Tribes, Individuals and Organizations. Topics covered included Legislative Updates, Federal Indian Policy, Sports Betting Bill, NCAI Update, Native HealthCare, Tribal Taxation, and several discussion panels.

In closing, as Maya Angelou stated, “Do the best you can until you know better. Then when you know better, do better.”

A Message From Teton Trade Cloth by Lenape CEO Leslie Jerden

Leslie Jerden

Teton Trade Cloth by Lenape will have officially released our Made in America woolen trade cloth by the time this article is printed. This is a momentous step in our business as it's the very first 10-band woolen trade cloth owned by a tribe to be manufactured in the USA. The mélange colors are American Red, Blue, and Purple. They're stunners and we are so excited to offer them! Our monochrome pink cotton fabrics have released, as well as the monarch patterns by MaryBeth Timothy, a new in-house design of brass sequin prints, as well as new cotton bandanas, satin scarves, and enamel pins.

We are still working on perfecting our American-made serape blankets on the looms at American Woolen Mill. Sample sizes are produced to test for quality in color, striping, tightness of the weave and hand feel. The normal process of any mill running a new product takes some time to get it "just right". We are almost there!

We are awaiting a jacquard loom for American Woolen Mill in order to produce geometric designs in the USA as well. Until then, we will continue to produce our trade cloth and serape styles from the mill, adding winter weight Honor Blankets to that list once the mill is equipped.

Teton has attended several pop-up Native Markets as well as Pow Wows with a sales booth. We are centering on Oklahoma, our tribal headquarters state, and we have some dates for larger events across state lines. Our intention is to raise brand awareness and to bring attention to our Tribal owned status. Next up will be Gathering of Nations Pow Wow in Albuquerque New Mexico!

This March Teton attended the Reservation Economic Summit as an exhibitor in Las Vegas, Nevada. With just over four thousand attendees this year, it is the most well attended and the longest running Native American business consortium in the United States. Tribal leaders, State and Federal agencies, top CEOs, and Native-owned businesses exhibit, attend learning sessions, have one-on-one meetings, and talk about strengthening our business across our Nations.

This year I brought Jacob Long, the majority owner of American Woolen Mill, as my guest to the conference. Together we pitched the abilities of Teton Trade Cloth by Lenape to create and customize Native and Indigenous artwork to format textile fabrics while running the production of those textiles through our co-owned mill to Tribal business owners.

This would allow for natural American-sourced fibers (such as wool or cotton) to be created and manufactured under our Tribal name and within the USA.

We want those public meeting spaces, conference rooms, cultural centers, casino lobbies, museum entry ways/installments etc. to utilize our business for interior textiles such as draperies and upholstery. We had some great conversations and made some very strong connections to start work on this endeavor. We intend to increase our business and partnership between both of these Tribal-owned companies.

In the quarter ahead, look for a fantastic new serape color line, a specialty colorway in American made trade cloth, and the public announcement of the annual Teton Trade Cloth by Lenape Fashion Show.

You are hearing it here in the DIN first! The fashion show will be held this year on Saturday October 26 right in our Tribal Headquarters town of Bartlesville Oklahoma. We will also have exclusive space for a Native Art Market with 40 booths. Applications for art market vendors, models and designers will be opened soon. Save the Date and come to the market and show!

Please don't forget you can help our business at no cost

An Elder's Persepective

Allan Barnes

Being an elder in the Delaware Tribe of Indians provides many blessings and opportunities. Jack Tatum once proclaimed at a tribal council meeting that “we are not a club but a tribe of people” and with that difference comes a responsibility to carry forth our ancestors traditions, culture, language and respect for the creator’s worldly gifts. So, how does that tie into our present and everyday relationship to our tribe? First off how does a tribal member become an elder? Age is the simple answer. But there is more to it than guidelines set forth by the AOA, Administration on Aging or even our own Title VI elder nutrition program, which defines an elder as age 55 and older. Thank goodness for this program that provides the daily opportunity to congregate and socialize. For some this allows our widowed or single living alone elders to have that much needed interaction with others. We all know several that have lost a loved one who still come to have a meal and enjoy the company. I often tell the story that my first experience as an elder was coming to the community center to pick up a lunch for my father many years ago. He would often recall the time when he and his brothers would meet at these congregate meals which at the time Kay Anderson did what she could with as little as she had to provide a nutritious meal.

Our Delaware tribe leaders recognize how important the relationships are between the elders and our tribal youth and what benefits it can provide by the stories and traditions we pass along. My experience as tribal employee of more than ten years has allowed me to see the assistance provided to our youth and elders. My father would be proud of the great strides the tribe has made in the areas of growth and recognizing the needs of all. Of course, an excellent example is the food pantry that provides much appreciated assistance for our elders and families raising children. The Delaware Tribe of Indians has so many programs our members can benefit from including housing and other forms of assistance. Also, support from our cultural department tribal archivist, Anita Davis Mathis an elder, honor our past by preserving so many items from our ancestors who have passed. These things have been the common thread that truly make us the respected Tribe that we have been and are today. Elders, past and present have provided their wisdom and experience to our youth, whether we realize it or not. No matter what generation we represent we should all have an underlying pride for our history and status as a respected tribe. ■

Volunteers Needed!

Tonya Anna

We are always looking for volunteers to assist the tribe. If there is something specific, you would like to assist with just let us know. Otherwise, we have these to choose from and if they spark an interest or you have ideas you would like to pass along email tanna@delawaretribe.org or call (918) 337-6531.

Lenapeowski Foundation—This 501(c)3 organization has been around since 2007 and has gone by the wayside. We would like to see someone get this group back up and running. Its mission was to preserve, sustain, and perpetuate Lenape language, culture, and society. When it was actively operating, they could have up to 30 school-aged children attend weekly. They would have potluck and cultural activities in Forsythe Hall where all children were welcome regardless of tribal affiliation.

Young Lenape Leaders—A motion was made in November 2021 to establish this group. They met a few times but could not get participation from our younger membership. This group may need an event to spark some interest for the younger members to get involved so any help would be greatly appreciated. ■

Wood Worker Needed

Tonya Anna

The Stockbridge Munsee gifted us a canoe and delivered it at last year's Pow Wow. It has been on display in the Tribal Council Chambers ever since. Unfortunately, it is cracking on each end and needs to be repaired. Maintenance tried wood glue but it's still cracking and we would like to have it repaired as soon as possible before it gets any worse. If your talent is wood working and you know how to rectify this issue, please give me a call at (918) 337-6537 or email tanna@delawaretribe.org. Wanishi ■

2024 Shamrock the 'Ville 5k Race and 1-Mile Fun Run/Walk

Delaware Tribe employees participated in the annual St. Patrick's Day Shamrock the 'Ville in March that helps contribute to Catholic Charities of Eastern Oklahoma's program, Mary Martha Outreach. Mary Martha Outreach is an outreach program in Bartlesville, OK that provides services to those in need and includes a food pantry, clothing center, and crisis response.

Environmental Director Tristen Tucker represented the Delaware Tribe in the 5K race and placed 2nd overall. He placed 1st in his age category.

Enrollment Director Emily Haney, Enrollment Clerk Skyler Brott, Peer Recovery Support Specialist Sherri Sam Chouteau, Executive Director of Tribal Operations Shana Robedeaux, Domicile Reinsurance Coordinator Becky Bridendolph, Title VI Caregiver Coordinator Tammy Cunningham, Wellness Director Cody Blackmon, Receptionist Hayden Ingram, and Executive Assistant to the Chief Dana Murrell all participated in the 1K fun run/walk.

Everyone received a bright green Delaware Tribe of Indians t-shirt as a souvenir of the event and a thank you for participating. Being a part of the community and raising awareness of the Delaware Tribe's programs and employees, now businesses, has been an ongoing priority. This is just one of many community events the Tribe hopes to be part of as we continue growing and contributing to benefit of the City of Bartlesville we call home. ■

Notice: The Delaware Indian calendar for 2024 is now available on the tribal website <https://delawaretribe.org/> or at this address:

<https://delawaretribe.org/blog/2023/12/01/download-a-2024-lenape-calendar/>

You can download your copy and print all the pages at once or print one month at a time as needed. For a wall calendar we suggest using 8.5 x 14 inch (legal size) paper.

What's New: A number of words and sentences continue to be added to the Lenape Talking Dictionary and some of the newest were ones recorded with Lucy Blalock in the 1990's.

Revived: The Lenape Word-a-Day calendar is a monthly calendar of Lenape names for different things. The downloadable calendar is also posted on the Tribal website <https://delawaretribe.org/> and it will continue to be posted at the beginning of each month. There are sound files for each of these words which are in the Lenape Talking Dictionary: <https://www.talk-lenape.org/>.

What's Available Online: One of many Lenape stories:

The Origin of the Bittersweet Vine

Told by Nora Thompson Dean translated in 1962

*The version in Lenape can be found here:
<https://www.talk-lenape.org/stories?id=96#2386>*

At one time a man went hunting in a big forest. He hunted all day, and when he got tired that evening he went to sleep under a big tree. Not long after, an owl alighted in the tree and soon another owl came there. He heard the two of them talking and he finally knew that they were quarrelling. That must have been the husband of the owl and he told her, "Why did you come here? You must like this man!" The husband-owl accused his wife of being in that tree because she liked the man who was sleeping under it. Finally he hit her with his wing and something fell to the ground.

Manunksu na Kukhus – The Owl is Angry

When it got daylight the man went to look at what he had heard fall, and he saw a red earring that fell last night. The hunter left it on the ground. In the Fall he returned to the forest, and where the earring had fallen something long was growing. It was covered with red berries that looked like the earring. That must have been the seed from which the Bittersweet Vine grew, and that is the reason we Lenape call the Bittersweet Kukhusëwim - the "Owl Berry".

Kukhusëwim – "Owl Berry" – American Bittersweet

Revived: Here are the Lenape Word-a-Day calendars for March and April. The downloadable calendar is also posted on the Tribal website with a calendar for that month. They will continue to be posted at the beginning of each month. There are sound files for each of these words and they are in the Lenape Talking Dictionary. ■

Stories Of Our Past—The Remarkable History Of The Delaware Tribe Of Indians

Anita Mathis, Librarian & Archives Director

Here in the Archives, we have many wonderful pictures, documents, and objects/artifacts of our Ancestors—from the past to the present.

In this article there will be a brief History of our Lenape, it will be in two parts.

Oklahoma was, and in many ways still is, Indian Territory. Oklahoma has the greatest percentage of Native Americans of any state in the Union. It is the home of forty-two federally recognized tribal units. Almost all of these tribal people were moved to Indian Territory in the nineteenth century. The Delaware were no exception.

The long trek from their original homeland in the Delaware River Valley to Oklahoma took approximately two hundred years. They were given the name of Delaware during the colonial occupation by English Governor Lord de la Warr. In their language, they are Lenape, which means "the common people." At first, the Delaware people were pushed back from the coastal regions by Dutch and then British colonists. By 1640 land cessions and the search for beaver, so sought after by Europeans for felt, had caused many Delaware to move westward.

They were considered a "grandfather" tribe whose power, position, and spiritual presence served to settle disputes among rival tribes. Even though they are known for their fierceness and tenacity as warriors, they chose a path of accommodation with the Europeans, treating with William Penn for eastern Pennsylvania and signing the first Indian treaty with the United States on September 17, 1778. The Lenape continued to give up their lands as they were pushed westward by the rising tide of European Americans. A small contingent of Delaware fled to Canada during a time of extreme persecution in 1790. Today, they occupy two small reserves, Moraviantown and Munsee, in the Province of Ontario.

By 1820, the Delaware that had remained in the United States crossed the Mississippi River into Missouri. During the next forty years, thirteen treaties were signed. These established a reservation in Kansas and, ultimately, a move to Indian Territory in 1866. In 1867, an agreement with the Cherokee allowed them to purchase a district there, where they could reside as Delaware within the Cherokee Nation.

As the Delaware began to move southwest and establish homesteads on unclaimed Cherokee land, the differences between two groups of Delaware became more marked. The Christian Delaware, led by Charles Journeycake, were more affluent, adopted white living standards, and advocated peaceful coexistence with their Cherokee brethren. The traditional Delaware were still active followers of the Big House religion that had provided spiritual renewal throughout the tribe's many years of uncertainty and upheaval. These Delaware, as keepers of the Big House, maintained a more isolated presence in the northwest corner of the Cherokee Territory.

They were apprehensive of Christian indignation towards their religion and built their ceremonial house in a remote location.

The last Big House stood near the Caney River, west of Copan, Oklahoma. It was constructed of hewn logs and there was a door at both the east and west ends. Large carvings of the face of Mesingw, guardian spirit of the game animals, were the only decorative features in the ceremonial building. The face of Mesingw was painted red on the right half and black on the left half. The center post of the building bore one face looking east and one looking west.

Keep your eye out for Part Two in the next issue of the DIN. Waniishi! ■

Katlynn Hanks, Delaware Tribe of Indians Youth

Katlynn Hanks

What is up lovebugs? My name is Katlynn Hanks and I am a member of the Lenni Lenape tribe with the Delaware Tribe of Indians. This year, I will be finishing up my degree at RSU as a business major! I love participating in pow wows and cultural events (when I'm actually able to make it to the meetings lol).

But it wasn't always this way.

I am Lenape on my mother's side and she has lived in Oklahoma almost all her life, but I grew up with my dad in Nevada. Even though I wasn't able to visit on a yearly basis, I have loved every minute of understanding my tribe more and it gave me a foundation to be more curious about my heritage.

In middle school, I joined our Native American club where we would meet once a month during our lunch time. We primarily learned about the Shoshone and Paiute ways, but the traditions were fairly similar and gave me both an appreciation and love for the Native traditions.

Now that I am living in Oklahoma again, it has been a fun journey to connect with the other members of our tribe. Everyone has been so inviting of me to all the different events that take place and always make sure I have a seat at their table.

Chief Brad KillsCrow does a great job of ensuring that he has an open ear to thoughts and suggestions that tribal members make and the Cultural Preservation Team is planning and creating different events to teach and encourage people to learn different traditions of our tribe.

I'm so excited to continue to be taught by these incredible humans and find all the ways I'm able to participate and help!

If you are like me and are trying to find ways to participate and be more involved in our tribe, take some time to stop by or call the Delaware office in Bartlesville and ask the staff some questions. If you're active on Facebook, feel free to look up the Tribe's Facebook page as they post a lot of the happenings in the area on there as well.

And always make sure to find some great friends :) they will help guide you to who to ask for different questions to be answered.

Stay bold. Stay courageous. And stay connected <3 ■

Delaware Tribe to Establish Lenape Seed Garden at HQ Campus

Curtis Zunigha

The Delaware Tribal Council recently approved a resolution to establish a Lenape Seed Garden at the tribal headquarters campus in Bartlesville. The Lenape Seed Garden Project (Xkanim Hakihakan) is an agricultural initiative, in partnership with Lenape Center (<https://lenape.center>), to grow ancestral varieties of corn, beans, squash, sunflowers, gourds, and tobacco. Lenape Center was founded in 2009 to continue Lenape presence in the ancestral homeland through art, culture, and community. Founded by artist and Executive Director Joe Baker, an enrolled tribal elder & Vietnam-era veteran, and Deputy Director Hadrien Coumans, Lenape Center established a seed rematriation program (now in its fifth year) with the expressed purpose of bringing ancestral seeds and knowledge to the Lenape communities.

The project will be managed by tribal member and former Chief Curtis Zunigha, now serving as a Co-Director of Lenape Center. Curtis retired from tribal employment in 2022 and has spent the last two seasons managing the Lenape Center Seed Garden at Hudson Valley Farm Hub in New York. “I’m excited to begin this project at tribal headquarters and connect our ancestors’ lifeways in the homeland with our present-day community in Oklahoma. After two years of managing a similar seed garden in New York’s Hudson Valley, I’ve experienced a spiritual connection with the soil, the waters, and the seeds. It has provided healing and wellness from the historical and generational trauma that still exists in our community today.”

The Lenape Center will donate seeds from the Lenape ancestral homeland to the tribe’s community in Bartlesville. The Seed Garden will be in a designated community garden space within the tribe’s Development Area Plan of August 2022. The project is also meant to revitalize traditional Lenape cultural elements including language, stories, ceremonies, songs, dances, and foods.

Costs for this project will come from the Tribe’s ARPA (American Rescue Plan Act of 2021) funds. Up to six tribal members will be contracted to work part-time through the season. They’ll learn practical and cultural aspects of traditional gardening, seed saving and sharing the harvest with community members. The project has recently drawn support from the Elders Committee and the Cultural Preservation Committee. More information on the recruitment of the Lenape Seed Garden Team will come soon on the Tribe’s website and social media platforms. ■

A Message From Food Pantry Director Sonny Fixico

Sonny Fixico, Food Pantry Director

The Feeding America Board of Directors and staff at the Food Bank of Eastern Oklahoma invited the Delaware Tribe to be Honored Guests at a special reception and dinner on Wednesday March 13, 2024. I got the honor of gifting a Delaware Tribe flag to the Food Bank of Eastern Oklahoma, seen on the right with Kelvin H. Taketa (Feeding America), Claire Babineaux-Fontenot (Feeding America), and Jeff Marlow (Food Bank of Eastern Oklahoma)

Rusty Creed Brown and I were invited to speak on a panel that took place before the dinner to discuss food sovereignty, which to me means food sustainability. Speaking of which, the Tribe is making strides to become food-sustainable with the Ranch and the orchard. We got a tour of the Food Bank facility now that their kitchen is completed. They have built a massive kitchen to feed hundreds per day. They really do help us out and I appreciate them. Spending $25 there is probably equivalent to spending $200-300 elsewhere, if not more. I also got to ride in the Chief-mobile. ■

XASKWIMI KSHITAY

Elgia Bryan

- 2 lbs. dried corn
- 5 lbs. beef or pork

SULUS SEE'-KON (a Delaware Indian Dish)

*Mary Townsend Crow
Delaware-Cherokee-Shawnee*

Sautee 2 or 3 pounds of ground beef in a stew pan until all the red has turned. It is preferable that this be chile-ground or coarsely ground beef or small chunks. In earlier days this was usually buffalo or venison.

After the meat has all cooked to a brown stirring frequently, pour in water to cover the meat well, to about an inch over it. Salt and pepper it then let it cook slowly for about 20 minutes while you make some little flour and water finger dumplings by putting about $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1 cup of flour in a small bowl and dripping cold water in this boiling beef with your fingers breaking them up smaller if necessary. Stir the little dumplings into the beef and cook slowly for about 8 to 10 minutes until the little finger dumplings are done. Stir frequently to keep from sticking.

If a more gravy-like soup is desired pour in a little flour-and-water thin paste to thicken the broth.

Serve this with some hot Indian fry bread and a salad, and finish the menu with a dessert of wild grape dumplings or berry cobbler, and you will see a circle of happy Indians around your table ■

Delaware Pow Wow 2024 Tahkox (Turtle) Races

Tonya Anna

Can you believe the turtle races have been going on for thirteen years?! It all started with six cousins finding turtles and wanting to do a race for entertainment. Little did I know the Falleaf-Wallace camp would start an event that would outgrow our camp and move to the football field. Barbara Wallace, Richard Falleaf, and Connie Falleaf were the first original judges. They have retired since then and said they would rather watch the race and the excitement on everyone's face. So if you are looking for something to do on Sunday afternoon at the powwow this year – come to the football field at 2 pm! We have seen all shapes and sizes from itty bitty to a big snapping turtle. So, keep in mind we do not let snappers or pond sliders compete and your turtle cannot be bigger than seven inches. Just a few items to remember if you are going to enter the race this year.

- Return turtles to the exact location that you retrieved them.
- Do not use toxic items to decorate them. Stickers are the best as they can be easily removed after racing.
- If your turtle flips over on its back then turn them back the way they turned over, if possible. If they are turned and flipped all the way over, they become disoriented.

The race takes place on Sunday, May 26, 2024, at 1:00 P.M. at the football field. Registration will begin around 12:30 P.M. Prizes will be awarded to the top three winners and first place gets to keep the traveling brass turtle for one year. Don't forget to have a name ready for your turtle during registration.

I would also like to take the time to thank Shawn Skeel for sponsoring the race last year by supplying the prizes and Blow-Pops. A big shout out to Andrew and Alyssa Vass for assisting the last couple of races. This year the race will be sponsored by Kristin (Morrison) and Brian Neal. This will be their first pow wow as husband & wife and they wanted to do something to commemorate their marriage. Thank you, Kristin & Brian!

If anyone would like to help assist with the race this year, please call me at (918) 533-8035. This would include taking pictures, registering turtles, passing out prizes, judging, calling out names for each heat and create the racing circle.

FUN FACTS (as reported by National Geographic Kids website)

1. Turtles belong to one of the oldest reptile groups in the world—beating snakes, crocodiles and alligators!
2. These creatures date back to the time of the dinosaurs, over 200 million years ago—woah!
3. Turtles are easily recognized by their bony, cartilaginous shell. This super-tough casing acts like a shield to protect them from predators – some turtles can even tuck their head up inside their shell for extra protection!
4. Just like your bones, a turtle's shell is actually part of its skeleton. It's made up of over 50 bones which include the turtle's rib cage and spine.

5. Contrary to popular belief, a turtle cannot come out of its shell. The turtle's shell grows with them, so it's impossible for them to grow too big for it!

6. What a turtle eats depends on the environment it lives in. Land-dwelling turtles will munch on beetles, fruit and grass, whereas sea dwellers will gobble everything from algae to squid and jellyfish.

7. Some turtles are carnivores (meat eaters), others are herbivores (plant eaters) and some are omnivores (a mixture of the two!). Many baby turtles start life as carnivores but grow to eat more plants as they mature.

8. Turtles are 'amniotes'—they breathe air and lay their eggs on land, although many species live in or around water.

9. These cold-blooded creatures have an incredibly long life span. The oldest ever recorded, named Tu'i Malila, of Tonga Island, passed away at the grand old age of 188!

10. Sadly, many species of turtle are endangered! 129 of approximately 300 species of turtle and tortoise on Earth today are either vulnerable, endangered, or critically endangered, according to the International Union for Conservation of Nature. Threats include loss of habitat, pollution, poaching and the illegal pet trade. ■

Paula Pechonick Honored for Women's History Month

Paula K Pechonick, a proud Lenape, was born north of Dewey on the allotment of her grandmother Minnie and has remained in Washington County almost her entire life. She made history as the first female Chief of the Delaware Tribe of Indians. Elected Chief in 2010, she served the Delaware Tribe of Indians for a productive 4 years. During Paula's administration and under her guidance the Tribe built the Delaware Social Services building, remodeled and enlarged the Community Center to include a larger Elder Nutrition kitchen, and reclaimed a Lenape presence in Lawrence, Kansas with the purchase of income producing farmland.

Her community service over the years is a reflection of her passion and commitment to her Indian community. Her additional elected positions with the Delaware Tribe of Indians include service as Tribal Judge for 5 years and on the Tribal Council for 16 years. Paula represents her Lenape community by taking an active role in the implementation of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA), having traveled to locations throughout the United States to include reburial ceremonies. For decades the Delaware Tribe appointed Paula to be their representative for the National Congress of American Indians.

A cultural passion for Paula is making Lenape moccasins. Moccasin making is a highly skilled art which Paula has perfected and shared with others since the 1960s. Chief has played an active role in handing down this cultural tradition by teaching moccasin making, leather work, beading, ribbon work and weaving for 60 years throughout the states of Oklahoma, Kansas, Indiana, and Pennsylvania. Her artistry is respected both in the United States and internationally. Examples of Delaware clothing exhibits include Conner Prairie Museum in Fishers, Indiana and New Jersey State Museum in Trenton, New Jersey.

Paula is a member of the Bartlesville Indian Women's club, Delaware Elders Council, a Delaware War Mother, and a member of the United Indian Methodist Church in Bartlesville. She has served on the Delaware Cultural Preservation Committee and the Delaware Indian News newspaper.

Chief Pechonick's goals and dreams have been and continue to be a living commitment to foster Lenape cultural awareness and to educate her community, family and friends. She boasts five children and 15 grandchildren, who have followed in her footsteps by attending numerous pow wows, naming ceremonies, and beading moccasins. ■

Obituaries

Linda 'Miimims' Clingan

October 2, 1947 -
January 25, 2024

Linda Clingan was a visionary fundraiser, political activist, and loving mother to three, step-mother to three, and grandmother to three. She considered many more her chosen family. In 1991, she helped found the Campaign for Equal Justice (CEJ) and served as its executive director until 2004. Under her leadership, the campaign raised $11 million in contributions for Oregon's legal aid programs. CEJ won the bipartisan support of Oregon's federal and state representatives and became a model fundraising program. Handwritten notes, home-cooked meals, and joy in work were trademarks of her fundraising and advocacy.

In partnership with the private bar, CEJ has continued to grow and has raised more than $33 million for equal justice. Those dollars provide free civil legal help for low-income Oregonians who would otherwise be priced out of the justice system.

Linda's fundraising career spanned many years and included work for the Pacific Science Center in Seattle and the Association of University Women Educational Foundation in Washington, D.C. She was also proud of her volunteer service in 1981 selling the bricks that funded construction of Pioneer Courthouse Square. Linda's early years as a parent living in public housing and surviving on very little shaped the activist she would become. Born in Seattle, she was the first person in her family to earn a bachelor's degree, graduating cum laude while working and raising two kids as a single mother.

In 1973, Linda, with her two small boys in tow, participated in a Field School in archaeology at the mouth of the Skagit River. It remained her favorite place for the rest of her life. She spent many summers there, living in a one-room shack on a farm overlooking the river. She explored the Skagit Bay estuary in her kayak, at home in its world of eelgrass, migratory birds, and seals.

Every August, Linda picked blackberries and baked the most delicious pies in the shack's old wood-burning oven. In fall, she barbecued salmon outside the cabin and collected the best corn and spuds from farms across the valley. The tradition of wonderful meals continued throughout Linda's life. She was not just the queen of the kitchen wherever she lived, but she involved all who arrived for dinner in the process. She opened her home to travelers, students, and people in need. Linda met her second husband, Fred Mebus, at Seattle Central Community college. They created a loving blended family and lived in Seattle's Madrona neighborhood until Mebus' sudden death. Linda's third husband, Michael Templeton, was her devoted companion for the next 40 years. In 1980, Michael accepted a job as executive director of OMSI and the family moved to Portland. They would call Portland home for most of the rest of their lives. She was enrolled member of the Delaware Tribe of Indians, a descendent of the Journeycake family. In her later years, she worked in and around Indian country participating in circles of revitalization and preservation. She found adopted family in the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs and the 'Nchi Wanapum canoe family.

In 2014, Linda survived leukemia and a bone marrow transplant. She continued to fundraise, travel, and kayak. She took her mobility scooter many places we did not think it could go.

Reflecting on her legacy on the Campaign for Equal Justice's 30th anniversary, Clingan said she had not changed the world, but she had made it a little better. She told her friends and colleagues, "There is so much more to do. You have the privilege of striving to make the world a better place, and you will."

She was preceded in death by second husband, Fredrick Mebus; third husband, Michael Templeton; and sister, Shirley Elaine Clingan Steele.

She is survived by mother, Alice Clingan; children, Darell Duffy, Martin Duffy, Amelia Templeton; stepsons, Kurt Mebus, Tyler Mebus, and Tony Mebus; and grandchildren, Makenzie Swan Duffy, Rowen Duffy, Arthur Templeton.

The family held a private service March 16, 2024. Donations in her memory may be made to the Campaign for Equal Justice and the Museum at Warm Springs. Please sign the online guest book at www.oregonlive.com/obits ■

He is the grandson of Rosa Secondine and great grandson of Fillmore Secondine and Rachel Logan and descendant of Chief James Secondine and Chief John Killbuck. Bob was quite skilled and built a covered porch around the side and back of their home and rocked their home in native stone. When people came by, he could always be heard saying “come on in this house”. And somehow Bob could always find time to watch old westerns.
