JACQUES E. LEVY

Jacques E. Levy, author of Cesar Chavez: Autobiography of La Causa (New York: Norton, [1975]), was a journalist in California before he began work on his Chavez biography in 1969. Levy began his writing career on the Harvard Crimson as an undergraduate at Harvard (Class of 1950). After graduation, he worked for various newspapers around the country before joining the Press Democrat of Santa Rosa, California in 1954, where he worked as a reporter, political editor, and assistant news editor. In 1957 he was awarded the Top Story Award at the California State Fair for a nine part series on union organizing techniques in the Redwood Empire, and in 1965 he received an award from the San Francisco Press Club for a five part series titled "Target: Poverty." For two years, he taught a course in journalism at Sonoma State College.

In April 1969 Levy took a leave of absence from the Press Democrat to start work on a biography of Cesar Chavez, later resigning from the newspaper to devote himself full time to the project. Chavez made himself available to Levy for lengthy interviews and encouraged family, friends, and union colleagues to cooperate with Levy as well. Levy travelled with Chavez, attended union rallies, press conferences, and executive board meetings of the United Farm Workers union, and at the 1970 grape strike negotiations with growers was present as Chavez's notetaker. Levy interviewed numerous other people related to Chavez and the farm worker movement, including Governor Jerry Brown, Jack Armstrong, and other prominent growers.

While researching the book Levy worked occasionally as a press agent for the United Farm Workers union, and after the book was published, helped Chavez write his speech nominating Jerry Brown for President at the 1976 Democratic National Convention.

In 1971, Larry Shears, a police informant in gun and drug deals, went public with information on a growers plot to assassinate Chavez. Chavez asked Levy to use his contacts as an investigative reporter to learn the names of the growers involved. Levy purchased Shears' collection of surreptitiously taped phone conversations, hired a private investigator, and made a deal with Rolling Stone to finance the investigation in return for an article. The case was dismissed for lack of evidence, and Levy pursued the possibility of a cover-up of the plot by government and law enforcement officials on behalf of prominent growers. The deal with Rolling Stone fell through, and the article was never published.

Cesar Chavez: Autobiography of La Causa takes the form of reminiscences of Chavez and others, culled from interviews conducted by Levy. Levy has also written many newspaper articles about Chavez and the farm labor movement, and conducted research on the assassination plot against Chavez. After Chavez's death in 1993, Levy explored the possibility of expanding his 1975 biography, interviewing Chavez's family, friends, and former colleagues. Tentatively titled More Time Than Life: Cesar Chavez -- His Life and Legacy, this work has not been pursued.

CESAR CHAVEZ (1927-1993)

Cesar Chavez, founder of the first successful labor union for farm workers in the United States, was born Cesario Estrada Chavez on March 31, 1927 in Yuma, Arizona to Librado and Juana Estrada Chavez, both of Mexican-American descent. In 1939, the Chavez family lost their farm in Arizona and moved to California where they began working in the fields. Cesar left school after the eighth grade and worked in the fields full time until World War II, when he served in the Navy for two years. After the war, he returned to working in the fields, and married Helen Fabela in 1948. They had eight children, many of whom became active in the United Farm Workers union with their father.

In 1952, Chavez was recruited by Fred Ross to be an organizer for the Community Service Organization, a self-help group designed to encourage Mexican-Americans to participate in elections. Chavez quickly became a full-time organizer for the CSO, fighting racial discrimination against Chicanos, arranging voter registration drives, and organizing new CSO chapters. In 1958 he became general director of the CSO. As director, Chavez challenged the Bracero Program, a government sponsored initiative during World War II to import Mexican workers to work in the fields during the labor shortage occasioned by the war. The program had continued after the war, and Chavez accused growers of taking advantage of the lower wages and poor conditions they could impose upon Mexican workers, thus denying Mexican-American workers jobs and driving down wages.

While learning the principles of organizing workers, Chavez came to the conclusion that what was really needed was a farm workers labor union. In 1962, at the age of 35, Chavez resigned from the Community Service Organization in order to found the National Farm Workers Association. Chavez became its president, with Dolores Huerta and Gilbert Padilla as vice-presidents. The union adopted a flag with a black eagle on a red background, a motto, "Viva La Causa", and established a newspaper, El Macriado, a credit union, a co-op, and death benefits for union members. The union came into prominence in 1965 after it voted to support the Agricultural Workers Organizing Committee in its grape strike in Delano, California. Chavez's non-violent tactics of pressure on the scabs and growers garnered national attention. The union performed skits on the picket lines, marched to Sacramento, picketed at grocery stores, and staged a public campaign about the dangers of eating table grapes raised by agribusiness pesticides. Chavez became well-known for another tactic, the fast. Inspired by Ghandi, Chavez staged several fasts over his career, a 25 day fast in 1968 to rebuild morale among picketers, and the second lengthy fast in 1988 to protest the pesticide poisoning of workers in the fields. These fasts, and many smaller ones, affected his health permanently.

The National Farm Workers Association merged with the Agricultural Workers Organizing Committee in 1966 to become the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee within the AFL-CIO. The grape strike ended in 1970, when most grape growers agreed to sign contracts with the UFW. The union continued to champion the rights of workers, and boycotted lettuce growers and a variety of other agribusinesses in similar ways, which often resulted in the signing of bargaining agreements. The International Brotherhood of Teamsters began to organize farm workers themselves, however, and set up its own union, one more favorable to the growers. When the UFW table grape contract came up for renewal in 1973, the growers signed with the Teamsters. The UFW called for a new boycott of table grapes, one which received nationwide support. Because of this pressure, the growers supported Governor Jerry Brown's 1975 Agricultural Labor Relations Act, which provided oversight in the relationship between agricultural employers and employees. After several years of conflict, the Teamsters and the UFW signed a contract in 1977, giving the UFW the sole right to organize farm workers.

The effectiveness of the UFW began to lose steam in the late 1970's and the 1980's, plagued by dissent within the union, and the changing perception of the union from social cause to standard labor union. In the 1980's, Chavez charged that the farm labor board had ceased enforcing the law, and called for a renewed grape boycott to draw attention to this problem.

In April, 1993, while in Arizona testifying for a civil trial between Bruce Church, Inc. (BCI) against UFW for their 1980's supermarket boycott of BCI lettuce in Arizona, Chavez died in his sleep at the home a friend. He was buried at the union headquarters, La Paz, in Keene, California. In 1991, Chavez was awarded the Aguila Azteca, given by the government of Mexico to people of Mexican heritage who have made significant contributions outside of Mexico. In 1994, Chavez was posthumously awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the highest civilian honor in the United States.

Scope and Contents

The Jacques E. Levy Research Collection on Cesar Chavez consists of audiotapes, transcripts, notebooks, correspondence, documents, printed material, and writings accumulated by Levy while conducting research for his book, Cesar Chavez: Autobiography of La Causa (New York: Norton, [1975]). The collection, spanning the dates 1959-1997, documents Cesar Chavez's life as well as the early history of the United Farm Workers union and the labor movement in California.

The collection was organized by Levy before its acquisition by the Yale Collection of Western Americana. This finding aid preserves the folder titles, series, and subseries titles used by Levy. Levy's sections have been reordered, but not rearranged internally. The Levy file numbers and audiotape numbers are preserved as part of the folder titles so that the numerous cross-references to those numbers in the Levy inventory are accessible. A copy of the highly detailed inventory of the collection prepared by Levy may be found in Series IX, Levy Inventory.

The Levy collection, housed in 78 boxes and comprising 35.47 linear feet, consists of ten series: Series I, Principal Cesar Chavez Tape Collection; Series II, Miscellaneous Cesar Chavez Tape Collection; Series III, Jacques E. Levy's Notebook Collection; Series IV, Research Collection; Series V, News Clippings; Series VI, California Labor Relations Act Collection; Series VII, Post Mortem Research; Series VIII, Written Notes; Series IX, Levy Inventory; and Series X, Assassination Plot. Boxes 50-52 contain Oversize material, boxes 53-76 contain Restricted Fragile, and box 77 contains Restricted Material.

The oral history component of the collection is particularly strong, as Levy conducted extensive interviews of Chavez, Chavez family members, colleagues, and others involved in the labor movement in the United States. Levy's book takes the form of reminiscences presented in the first person as taken from these interviews, however, he states in the preface that he has blended Chavez's remarks from several sources to bring out his views. Levy also honored Chavez's request that some statements not be used until after his death, and gathered many other audiotape interviews both before and after Chavez's death for books that were never completed. Therefore, the audiotapes contain original material and unedited statements that do not appear in Levy's biography or his other published writings.

Levy's collection of audiotapes (314 in all, totalling ca. 500 hours of interviews), was compiled between 1969 and 1995; the bulk of the interviews are dated prior to 1976. The oral history interviews were conducted by Levy outside of formal studio settings: in bedrooms, hotel rooms, at rallies, on picket lines, on long car trips, and plane trips. In addition, there are audiotapes of speeches made at rallies, interviews on television, and phone conversations. Several speeches are in Spanish. Many of the tapes were transcribed for or by Levy. Where a transcript of an audiotape exists, a note has been made in the finding aid listing its location. Levy's inventory indicates whether an audiotape has been partially transcribed, partially paraphrased, or not transcribed at all. The original audiotapes are restricted. Reference copies have been made on CD-ROM. Notes regarding the reformatting of the audiotapes to CD-ROM may be found in Appendix B.

Series I, *Principal Cesar Chavez Tape Collection*, 1969-1976 (boxes 1-6), contains original audiotape interviews of Cesar Chavez and others closely associated with him, as well as transcripts of these interviews. This series contains most of the interviews of Chavez that were used for Levy's Chavez biography. There are 128 audiotapes, comprising approximately 230 hours of interviews. The interviews cover an array of topics: Chavez's life, philosophy, religion, politics, labor history, tactics, and interpretations of current events from 1969-1976. The interviews were conducted at Chavez's home and numerous other locations, including many made on long car trips, with Levy driving and Chavez operating the tape recorder. Levy had access to executive board meetings and strategy sessions of the United Farm Workers, as well as Chavez's thoughts on the behind the scenes maneuvering to get the growers to the negotiating table in 1970. Levy was also part of the Chavez party during a 1974 trip to Europe, where he taped key meetings with European labor leaders and others. The interviews with relatives, friends, and colleagues of Chavez, as well as growers and law enforcement, include a group interview of Chavez, his brothers, sisters, and parents recalling early years in Arizona and California, taped over a two day period.

The audiotapes are organized into Tapes 1-105 and Additional Tapes, the latter being further organized into Miscellaneous, Europe Trip, and Post Book Interviews. The transcripts are not complete: not every audiotape has a transcript, some transcripts are partial or contain paraphrased material (for details, see the Levy inventory in Series IX). Levy also included as part of two transcripts material that was not audiotaped but transcribed from his notes instead. This includes Levy's notes from the June 1970 negotiations with large scale growers (box 2, pages 529-583, folders 141-142), and an interview with Al Rojas (box 4, folder 174). Most of the transcripts were divided into five "volumes," with pages numbered continuously from volume one to volume five. Other transcripts may be found in files for individuals. Most transcripts are in English, with a few scattered Spanish phrases. The transcripts often appear in duplicate, with one copy corrected in manuscript. The transcripts also include Levy's notes about the taping of the interview: reasons why he turned off the tape recorder, notes on the quality of the audiotape, etc.

Series II, *Miscellaneous Cesar Chavez Tape Collection*, 1969-1976 (box 7), is organized into two subseries: Audiotapes and Transcripts. This series contains a wide variety of material taped by Levy while he was researching the book and after publication. There are 57 audiotapes, yielding approximately 95 hours of interviews. Transcripts exist where noted. The audiotapes include a few radio and television interviews of Chavez, many interviews of Levy about the book, and ten audiotapes of Levy reading the book manuscript to Chavez. Other audiotapes in the collection include Ethel Kennedy's visit with Chavez in Salinas jail, Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr. at a rally in Salinas in 1970, the Reverend Jesse Jackson at a rally, 1970; Joan Baez at a Mass in Phoenix in 1972; Governor Jerry Brown on "Firing Line" in 1975; and Governor Jimmy Carter at the UFW Convention in 1976. Two audiotapes feature Chavez speaking in Spanish.

Series III, *Jacques E. Levy's Notebook Collection*, 1968-1994 (boxes 8-16), contains the author's original field notes in 96 top bound stenographer's spiral notebooks, organized in chronological order. The notes were taken at meetings, court hearings, and labor negotiations during the formative stage of the United Farm Workers union, particularly the last year of the five-year grape strike and its resolution, the labor strife in the vegetable industry, and the 1973 strikes. There are also notes from numerous interviews, the 1,000 mile march, information on the assassination plot, and hearings on the Agricultural Labor Relations Act, as well as ideas for a screenplay based on the book. Levy used some of these notebooks in recording his memory of events on audiotape, which he later transcribed. These appear in Series I, Principal Cesar Chavez Tape Collection (see Transcript volume 2, pages 529-583, box 2, folders 141-142). The dates assigned to the notebooks are approximate, as many of the notebooks are undated. Levy often wrote in the notebooks from front to back, and then from back to front, and used his own shorthand: "x" stands for "Mrs." when it precedes a name, an elongated "w" stands for "with," and a double elongated "w" stands for "without."

Series IV, *Research Collection*, 1959-1978 (boxes 17-23), is organized into four subseries: Preliminary Research, Later Research, General Information, and Bracero 1965 Research. These subject files are arranged alphabetically, and include both original material and photocopied material. The files include printed material, court reports and other documents, correspondence, a radio script, reports, press releases, and other writings. Of particular interest are a photocopy of Cesar Chavez's appointment book from 1957; 14 original letters from Chavez to Dolores Huerta, co-founder and first vice president of the United Farm Workers union; newsletters of the Farm Workers Association; a United Farm Workers union coloring book; photocopies of Chavez's correspondence with Robert F. Kennedy, Edward Kennedy, Saul Alinsky, Fred Ross, and Dolores Huerta; photocopies of articles by Chavez; a manuscript map of the Chavez family homestead in Yuma; and Chavez's speech nominating Jerry Brown for President at the Democratic National Convention in 1976.

Series V, News Clippings, 1961-1996 (boxes 24-27a), is arranged in chronological order. The clippings are predominantly from California newspapers, and consist of long as well as very short articles on farm workers, the United Farm Workers union, Cesar Chavez, and related subjects, including pesticide use, Watergate, the mafia, Mexican Americans, and the AFL-CIO. There are a few complete publications, including several issues of the union publication El Macriado, single copies of El Chicano, The California AFL-CIO News, The New York Review of Books, The Christian Century, and The New Republic. A couple of the clippings are in unusual formats: stories directly from the UPI newswire, Levy's handwritten copies of stories. The largest group of clippings dates from 1973; the number of clippings collected drops off dramatically in September, 1975. News clippings may also be found in Series IV, Research Collection; Series VI, California Labor Relations Act Collection; and Series VII, Post Mortem Research.

Series VI, California Labor Relations Act Collection, 1968-1994 (boxes 28-30), is organized into two subseries: Audiotapes and Written Collection. This series concerns the passage of the California Labor Relations Act, which was signed into law on June 5, 1975. The 17 audiotapes (approximately 24 hours of interviews) are arranged in roughly chronological order, and were made in 1975. All but three of the interviews on the audiotapes (tapes 6A, 7A, and 8A) were gathered too late for inclusion in Levy's book, and were not used by him for any other published work. The first two audiotapes contain detailed accounts of the CALRA legislation as recounted by union members two weeks after the bill was signed into law. The transcripts are not complete: not every audiotape has a transcript, and those that do are often partial transcripts or contain paraphrased material.

The Written Collection, which contains both original and photocopied material, is organized into Agricultural Bills, General Materials, Tape Transcripts, Post 1988 Material, and Press Clippings. Included are printed bills, signed petitions circulated by the United Farm Workers union, Jacques Levy's notes, leaflets, Agricultural Labor Relations Board Reports, press releases, and news clippings. The series includes official Agricultural Labor Relations Board election results from the law's passage in 1975 through July 31, 1994. The clippings focus on Governor Jerry Brown, and include several non-clipping items: the printed text of Brown's inaugural address, his budget message, and many preliminary transcripts of news conferences distributed to the press. Materials related to this legislation may also be found in Series I, Principal Cesar Chavez Tape Collection; III, Jacques E. Levy's Notebook Collection; IV, Research Collection; and VII, Post Mortem Research.

Series VII, Post Mortem Research, 1981-1997 (boxes 31-40), is organized into two subseries: Audiotapes and Written Collection. The Post Mortem Research files were created when Jacques Levy began work on a full length biography of Cesar Chavez following his death in 1993, tentatively titled More Time Than Life: Cesar Chavez -- His Life and Legacy, which Levy has not completed. Levy interviewed Chavez's family, friends, and colleagues about events since 1975 and also before, looking for information that had been withheld during his previous research.

There are 73 audiotapes in the Post Mortem Research Files, approximately 100 hours of interviews. Some of the interviews were conducted by Davy Figaro, Levy's research assistant. The audiotapes include a group interview shortly after Cesar's death describing the days before his death and the circumstances of his death.

The Written Collection, which contains both original and photocopied material, is further organized into General Files, Oversized Files, and FBI. The transcripts, which are part of the General Files, are complete except for the last three: the rehearsal of Daniel Kingman's Cesar Chavez, Gran Hombre de la Tierra, and interviews with Roy T. Harris, Fred Abad, and Jerry Cohen in September and October 1993. The transcripts were created using a computer, and contain original file names at the top of each page. The pages have highlighter pen marks, Levy's notes, and codes written in the margin indicating the section of the book in which Levy intended to apply them. These codes Levy called tags, and the subject files include indexes to these tags.

In addition to the transcripts, the files include copies of the notes Cesar Chavez used for his lecture series on the history of farm labor and the University of California Santa Barbara in 1992, correspondence between Levy and interviewees, as well as documentation relating to Levy's negotiations with the Chavez Foundation in sponsoring his work on the biography. There are eleven folders of Chavez's FBI files, which Levy requested through the Freedom of Information Act in 1993. Printed material relating to Chavez's death include clippings, and programs from the funeral.

Series VIII, *Written Notes*, 1968-1993 (boxes 41-42), is organized into six subseries: Negotiations, Jacques Levy Personal Papers, Jacques Levy Correspondence, Jacques Levy Research Notes, Book and Movie Outline, and Post 1975 Materials. Within each subseries, the subject files are arranged alphabetically. This series, which contains both original and photocopied material, includes unpublished notes on major negotiations with grape growers and others, correspondence with Cesar Chavez about writing the biography, discussing developments in the union, as well as personal matters. Other correspondents include Jim Drake, Senator George Murphy, editors, literary agents, and librarians at Wayne State University. Levy discusses his work on the book with these people and gathers information in these letters. Personal papers of Levy's include copies of speeches made about Chavez and the farm labor movement, a book proposal, and proposals for a movie based on Cesar's life.

Series IX, *Levy Inventory*, 1998 (box 43), is the original inventory created by Levy that accompanied the collection when it was acquired by the Beinecke Library. Levy's inventory lists each item in each folder, provides lengthy descriptions of the content of the audiotapes and notebooks, and lists clippings individually by title, date, and newspaper. The inventory does not provide current box and folder information needed to locate individual items or groups of material: for that, consult the box and folder listings laid out in Series I-VIII and X. Other differences of detail between the finding aid and inventory: Levy's description of each file makes no distinction between copies and originals in terms of assigning dates; the Beinecke finding aid lists copies of original material as undated. The Levy inventory also indicates whether an audiotape has been partially transcribed, partially paraphrased, or not transcribed at all.

Series X, *Assassination Plot*, 1971-1974 (boxes 44-49), is currently restricted. For further information, please contact the curator. The series is organized into seven subseries: Audiotapes, Book Material, Plot Files, Plot Material, Shears Tapes, "The Snitch", and Transcripts. This series contains both original and photocopied material relating to Levy's investigation of a growers' plot to kill Chavez, as revealed by informant Larry Shears, and Levy's suspicion of a subsequent cover-up by government and law enforcement officials on behalf of prominent growers. Most of this material was never published. There are 39 audiotapes; 20 of them (and 6 duplicates) are surreptitiously taped phone conversations made by Larry Shears, a police informant, to document a plot to kill Chavez in 1971. Each side of these audiotapes was numbered individually. The other audiotapes in the collection are tapes of Levy's interview of Larry Shears, tapes of Larry Shears' polygraph test, and interviews by others of Larry Shears. The audiotapes made by Shears were turned over to the police and FBI, and transcripts were made as well. There are transcripts for almost all of the audiotapes in this series, and there are also transcripts present for which there are no corresponding audiotapes. After reformatting, some audiotapes were discovered to be duplicates, necessitating a rearrangement of the audiotapes and a gap in the folder numbering.

The subject files in the Book Material, Plot Files, Plot Material, and Transcripts subseries are arranged alphabetically, and include transcripts, copies of court transcripts, Levy's notes of his meetings with authorities and Larry Shears, correspondence relating to the plot, a polygraph report on Larry Shears, a typescript by Levy detailing the plot, and a screenplay by Maurice Hatton based on events as researched by Levy, entitled "The Snitch." The Plot Files were apparently files created by Levy during his research on the plot, and Plot Material is apparently files of others obtained by Levy. The assassination plot is also chronicled in Series III, Jacques E. Levy's Notebook Collection, notebooks 32-41, 43, 45, 53-56, 60-61, 64, 70, and 89.

Appendix A: Discrepancies Between Levy Inventory and Beinecke Finding Aid

Series I, file 14: William "Bill" Kircher. File found empty.

Series I, tape 111, Cesar Chavez Bonn, West Germany talk continued, Copenhagen press conference, Brussell press conference: Brussels press conference is described as being present on side B of audiotape, which is mostly blank.

Series II, Tape 57: JEL reading book manuscript to Cesar Chavez was found to be blank.

Series IV, file 6: Missing AWOC/labor contractors agreement used between 1963 and 1965 (8p.).

Series VI, file 60: Missing clipping number 2: Time cover story, "Campaign '74" 10/21/74.

Series VIII, folder 781: Missing audiotape GH Tape 2 (George Higgins).

Series X, Cassette 21-22: During reformatting, cassette side 22 was found to be recorded pop music of the period.

Series X, Cassettes 29-40: There are duplicates of each of these audiotapes, not mentioned in Levy inventory.

Series X: There is a "Cassette 7-8 Barger case" not mentioned in Levy inventory.

Series X, Plot Tape 5: Described on Levy inventory as "Shears test" is actually an interview with Levy, and Levy's indexing of his tapes. A transcript is also available for side A.

Series X, Plot Tape 8: There are two more tapes which together duplicate the information on this audiocassette, not mentioned in the Levy inventory.

Series X: There are cassettes marked "Cassette 3" and "Cassette 6" not mentioned in the Levy inventory.

Appendix B: Notes Regarding Reformatting Audiotapes to CD-ROM

The audiotapes were reformatted to CD-ROM in 2001. Levy used audiotapes of varying lengths. 40 and 60 minute audiotapes were reformatted onto one CD. 90, 100, and 120 minute audiotapes were reformatted onto two CDs, one CD per side. These CDs share a folder number and are identified as "1 of 2" and "2 of 2." No filtering or equalization was used during the reformatting, in order that the audiotapes replicate the tapes as closely as possible. Each CD carries two tracks: the recorded leader with copyright information, and the contents of the audiotape. The following notes reflect action taken by the reformatter during this work.

Folder 54, 2 of 2, Tape 54, Cesar Chavez, Night union meeting, Manuel Chavez: The CD has three tracks, rather than the usual two, due to a 9 minute gap after the first 1:15.

Folder 55, 1 of 2, Tape 55, Cesar Chavez, JEL notes: The CD has three tracks due to an inadvertent push of the button during reformatting. Track 3 is just a continuation of track 2.

Folder 57, 2 of 2, Tape 57, Cesar Chavez, JEL notes, Cesar Chavez and others: The first 3:53 of the tape are blank. The CD starts with the first sound on the tape.

Folder 64, Tape 62 (#2), Dr. Jerome Lackner: This audiotape was not reformatted to a CD. Dr. Lackner's comments on Cesar Chavez's health after a 4 day fast runs for 2:40 minutes.

Folder 83, Tape 79 (#g2), Cesar Chavez: The first 9:53 of the tape are blank. The CD starts with the first sound on the tape.

Folder 109, Tape 105. Helen Chavez continued, Richard Chavez: The audiotape is identified as this, but the actual recording is of Jacques Levy on modern French tapestry maker Jean Lurçat.

Folder 115, Tape 111, Cesar Chavez Bonn, West Germany talk continued, Copenhagen press conference, [Brussell press conference?]: Brussels press conference described as being present on audiotape is not there.

Folder 121, Tape 117, JEL notes: The first 1:09 of the tape are blank. The CD starts with the first sound on the tape.

Folder 125, 2 of 2, Tape 121, JEL notes: The CD has three tracks because the audiotape folded onto itself. The reformatter stopped the CD for the two minutes of bad backward tape.

Folder 126, 1 of 2, Tape 122, Senator Kennedy speech, JEL notes, memorial mass with Joan Baez: The CD has three tracks, due to a three minute gap after the first 13 minutes (after the Kennedy speech and before the question and answer with Kennedy).

Folder 213, Tape 6, Anti UFW rally, Salinas Valley: The CD has seven tracks, due to the poor condition of the audiotape. The reformatter stopped and started the CD while rerunning the audiotape six times before being forced to stop the transfer completely.

Folder 236, Tape 29, JEL interviewed on KTRB: The audiotape side B was marked "con't." but the side was blank.

Folder 255j, Tape 57, JEL reading book manuscript to Cesar Chavez: The audiotape is blank on both sides.

Folder 518, 1 of 2, CALRA Tape 2, Jerry Cohen and UFW attorneys Sandy Nathan and Tony Gaenslen: The first 6:42 minutes of the tape are blank. The CD starts with the first sound on the tape.

Folder 636, PMR MG Tape 6, Marshall Ganz: The audiotape side B has a set up but the rest of the tape is blank.

Folder 650, PMR CH Tape 5, Chris Hartmire: The audiotape side B was marked as a continuation of side A, but was blank.

Folder 835, cassette 17-18: Side 17 is just a test side; there is no information after 1:28 minutes.

Folder 841a, Cassette 29-30 John Tudor: Track 2, labeled Cass 29 is actually cassette side 30 and track 3, labeled Cass 30 is actually cassette side 29.
