The 2019 Session

Going into this year's State Legislative Session, the Women's Lobby of Colorado was driven, prepared, and incredibly hopeful about the likelihood of passing meaningful legislation. We were happy to see a window of opportunity for an extremely important issue this session—renters' rights—as well as other big ideas that we supported, including paid family and medical leave, comprehensive sex education, equal pay for equal work, and local health and safety protections from oil and gas drilling. In many cases, our hopes were borne out, and we saw the passage of several bills that will immediately improve the lives of women, families, and all Coloradans. On the other hand, we also experienced disappointments that only propel us to continue the fight for women's equity, rights, and needs next session.

Advocacy by the Women's Lobby of Colorado

We were busy this year. Over this legislative session, we maintained a daily lobbying presence at the Capitol, testified in seven committee hearings, wrote dozens of emails to legislators, hosted our own lobby day and participated in many others, and developed and held our first ever advocacy training for community activists who want to be more effective at the Capitol. We plan to continue this work and to be a resource for advocates.

Our Priority This Year: Housing as a Women's Issue

With allies in both chambers and advocacy groups—particularly 9to5 Colorado — championing housing rights as a priority in the midst of a statewide housing crisis, this session saw a total of six housing rights bills successfully pass! These range from increasing the time to cure a lease to capping rental application fees to—our priority bill—raising the standard on what makes a residence habitable and strengthening renters’ rights in cases where residences are unsafe or hazardous.

The Women’s Lobby partnered with 9to5 Colorado in choosing HB19-1170, Residential Tenants Health And Safety Act, as our priority bill this year. As the priority bill, our lobbying team supported other advocates working on this important bill. Women's rights and housing rights intersect, including renters' rights. We chose HB19-1170 because it will help thousands of Colorado renters, and the benefits will particularly help low-income tenants, families with small children, and single-parent households.

Sadly, legislation to allow municipalities to pass their own rent stabilization policies, including rent control, failed to pass the Colorado Senate. SB19-225 to Authorize Local Governments To Stabilize Rent could have helped cities across the state as they consider ways to help their residents continue to live and prosper.

Improving housing access and habitability aligns with our mission to uplift public policy that benefits for women and families. As costs for housing continue to rise, the community's need for it rise as well. It is our hope that our support for reforms will help Coloradans across the state.

The Legislature passed 6 bills to respond to Colorado's housing issues:

- HB19-1106: Requires rental application fees be more transparent and reasonable
- HB19-1118: Gives tenants more time to fix a non-substantial lease violation before an eviction
- HB19-1170: Residential Health and Safety Act requires improved habitability standards for rental properties
- HB19-1245: Will add additional dollars into Colorado’s housing system for affordable housing
- HB19-1322: Expand supply affordable housing from 2021-2024
- SB19-180: Establishes an Eviction Legal Defense Fund to provide critical funding for tenants to access legal services when facing an eviction

The Colorado Legislature's Response To Sexual Harassment

Last year, our scorecard highlighted an important issue our country, state, and legislature continue to face—sexual harassment. Our priority bill, HB18-1243, now law, protects survivors from being re-traumatized when seeking civil damages from their sexual assault perpetrator.

Supported by others coming forward from around the country, several individuals in the State Capitol did the same with their own experiences of sexual harassment and assault. For the first time, a legislator was expelled by fellow members for his behavior. The movement for more accountability and consequences for those who sexually harass and/or assault had come to the Colorado Capitol, finally. While actions were taken last year in one circumstance, they did not in others. This showed us that there was still a clear need for a better process and protections in the Colorado Capitol as we wrote our 2018 Scorecard.

This year, the General Assembly came back to respond to these needs with the passage of legislation and resolutions to formalize and clarify processes for sexual harassment complaints. SB19-244 created transparency requirements and a confidential office for complainants. The legislature also passed resolutions in each chamber to establish committees to oversee investigations and make recommendations for the adjudication of complaints. Additionally, a joint resolution, SJR19-010, was passed to create clearer expectations for everyone in the General Assembly, including required confidentiality protections for complainants and sexual harassment training for legislators, staff, and third parties (e.g., lobbyists). We believe it will be vital that all parties participate in these trainings, and new policies followed to protect more individuals from sexual harassment in our legislature. Time will tell.

Changes Made:

- Formal and informal complaint-resolution process
- Confidentiality requirements for complainants
- Complainants and respondents given equal access to information & services
- Creation of a preponderance-of-the-evidence standard
- Clear personnel manuals, updated annually
- Trainings on sexual harassment for legislators, staff, and third parties

Looking Ahead to 2020

The Women's Lobby of Colorado's multi-issue approach to public policy advocacy is evident in the diversity of issues we supported this year. Although we will always unequivocally advocate for bills historically known as "women's issues," we are also interested in the intersections between gender equity and other issues such as housing, the environment, education, gun reform, and jobs. Not only are women's voices crucial to those conversations, but the impacts of those policies must be understood in the way they will affect women and other marginalized groups. In short, to quote the disability rights activists with ADAPT Colorado, "Nothing about us without us."

We are thrilled to celebrate our wins from this session and to continue working in partnership with legislators, activists, and advocacy organizations to build on these successes and continue advancing gender equity in public policy.

Important Wins

Women's advocates saw big wins for working families, public health and safety, and civil rights. Many of these bills represent years of advocacy on the part of activists and coalitions, and they saw an intense and mobilized opposition that came out to testify and lobby against them—sometimes at committee hearings far into the night.

Environmental Policy

In the area of environmental policy, both SB19-181, Protect Public Welfare Oil and Gas Operations, and HB19-1261, Climate Action Plan to Reduce Pollution, passed. SB19-181 strengthened the ability for local communities to regulate oil and gas operations, and to prioritize public health and safety. HB19-1261 establishes statewide carbon reduction goals and would greatly decrease health risks for communities of color and low-income communities, including women, children, older people, and single mothers, which are some of the groups most impacted by climate change. In both cases, these bills draw a connection between the health of the environment and the health of the public, especially for marginalized or underrepresented groups.

Reproductive Health, Rights, and Education

This session, the Women's Lobby took an official stance against only one bill: HB19-1103, Protect Human Life at Conception. This bill would have effectively banned abortion and classified providing an abortion as a Class I felony. We are happy to say that this bill did not pass its initial committee. In past years, reproductive health, rights, and justice organizations and activists have had to fight back a handful of anti-choice bills each session, but the pro-choice majority in both chambers of the legislature shifted the legislative environment this year.

The same groups that normally would have tried to push anti-choice legislation still showed up at the Capitol, but they focused primarily on opposing LGBTQ issues and comprehensive sex education.

HB19-1032, Comprehensive Human Sexuality Education, came down to the wire in the Colorado Senate, but it passed successfully with amendments. Policy impacts include closing a loophole that previously allowed abstinence-only instruction to in schools; destigmatizing abortion; requiring curriculum to be consent-based and LGBTQ-inclusive; and—crucially—providing funding for schools, particularly rural or underserved schools, through a grant program. Ultimately, this bill is a major step forward in providing Colorado youth with the comprehensive sexual education that they deserve.

Pay Equity Policy For working women, pay equity is a central issue, which made the passage of SB19-085, Equal Pay for Equal Work Act, so crucial to the ongoing fight to closing the pay gap that women—especially women of color—experience compared to their white male counterparts. The bill puts important legal protections in place for those who have faced pay inequities.

Workers' Rights HB19-1210, Local Government Minimum Wage, also passed at the end of legislative session, repealing the state prohibition against local governments raising the minimum wage in their own jurisdictions. We believe in and support bills to benefit workers's rights in Colorado because it is often women who work jobs with the least amount of support, pay, and legal protections.

Criminal Justice Reform Another bill that affected workers, HB19-1025, Limits on Job Applicant Criminal History Inquiries (commonly known as “Ban the Box”) , also passed, prohibiting employers from screening out applicants with prior criminal history from the initial job application. A similar bill also passed for those applying to college in Colorado, with the exception of sexual assault histories. These bills remove barriers to jobs and can help Coloradans move forward, allowing them to create their own economic security.

Preventing Sexual Assault on College Campuses Through a multi-year stakeholder process, Colorado strengthened protections on college campuses for survivors of sexual misconduct. SB19-007 passed and requires institutions of higher education to apply all the provisions of their sexual misconduct policy equally to ensure survivors of campus-based sexual assault continue to have access to meaningful education. SB19-007 establishes awareness and prevention training guidelines and standards, requires Institutions to publish their sexual misconduct policies to Colorado Department of Higher Education website, and establishes state funding for biennial summits to promote awareness and prevention of campus-based sexual misconduct.

Gun Safety Policy

Another important bill that passed this year after several years of advocacy was HB19-1177, Extreme Risk Protection Orders. This piece of gun reform legislation will allow a family member, household member, or law enforcement officer to petition a court to temporarily remove a firearm from individuals who pose an immediate threat to themselves or others. In the United States, children face a substantial risk of firearm injury and death, and women in domestic abuse situations are at risk of firearm violence. HB19-1177 addresses the gun violence epidemic by providing resources to diffuse that risk in the short term.

LGBTQ Rights

LGBTQ Coloradans rights saw two substantial wins this session: HB19-1039, Identity Documents for Transgender Persons, and HB19-1129, Prohibit Conversion Therapy for a Minor. The first makes it easier for transgender people to make changes to and obtain birth certificates that accurately reflect their gender identity. Access to accurate identification increases their safety and health. The second prohibits the incredibly harmful, not medically proven, and homophobic and transphobic practice of “conversion therapy,” or trying to change a person’s sexual orientation and/or eliminate a person’s attraction to others of the same sex. Both of these bills were a long time coming, and will have immediate impacts on people across the state in terms of civil rights, health, and safety.

Additional Priorities WLC and our members make it a priority to support bills that impact the many facets of women's lives, and include them in this scorecard. In addition to the bills discussed above, our Scorecard includes policies to extend the income tax credit for child care expenses for low-income Coloradans (HB19-1013); a bill to create a state committee to analyze and make policy recommendations to decrease maternal mortality rates, (HB19-1122); a bill to add to the definition of sexual assault when a perpetrator knowingly causing a bodily substance to contact any body part of a victim (HB19-1155), a bill to require all women in the custody of law enforcement to have access to menstrual hygiene products (HB19-1224) and after years of advocacy, state funding for all-day kindergarten for all Colorado children (HB19-1262).

A Sad Loss

Paid Family and Medical Leave Insurance

Sadly, intense lobbying from business interests affected the outcomes of some issues—including the continued work to pass paid family and medical leave. In fact, SB19-188, Family Medical Leave Insurance Program (FAMLI), was the most lobbied legislation this session. As a result, the bill, which in its original version would have finally created a family and medical leave program in Colorado, was weakened to merely create studies and plans to consider creation of the program. This followed a decade of work by many advocates and state leaders, including the support of Women's Lobby of Colorado.

We are saddened by this outcome, but we are not deterred. This program will help thousands of Colorado families every year, and in turn, will support our state's economic security. We will continue to fight for it.

Women's Lobby of Colorado joined fellow advocates to rally for the FAMLI Act

The fact that corporate lobbyists were able to exert so much influence on legislation that protects workers' rights, the environment, and the health and safety of women and families underscores how crucial advocacy organizations like the Women's Lobby are. Unlike the businesses that lobbied against those bills, the Women's Lobby works to uplift the voices and needs of community, including their health and safety, putting people's lives before profits, always.
