I am a senior economic policy advisor at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis Research Division. Previously, I worked for two years as an economist at the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. I received my Ph.D. from the University of Rochester in 2008. Since then, I have published papers in the American Economic Review, Econometrica, the Journal of Monetary Economics, the Journal of Economic Theory, the Journal of Financial Economics, the Review of Financial Studies, the International Economic Review, and the Journal of International Economics, among others. My research focuses on macro-finance topics, emphasizing firm dynamics, economic growth, consumer finance, and sovereign default. Since July 2018, I am Associate Editor of the Journal of Economic Dynamics and Control. Since 2021, I have also been a St. Louis Fed Review co-editor. I taught Money and Banking between 2013 and 2017 at Washington University in St. Louis. Since 2018, I have taught Quantitative Macro Theory at the graduate level there.
