

STRATEGIC COMPASS

A STRATEGIC COMPASS FOR SECURITY AND DEFENCE

The EU needs to become a stronger and more capable actor in security and defence: both to protect the security of its citizens and to act in crisis situations that affect the EU's values and interests. With the Strategic Compass adopted in March 2022, Member States have agreed on a common strategic vision for the EU's role in security and defence and have committed to a set of concrete and wide-ranging objectives to achieve these goals in the coming 5-10 years.

“Europe must learn to speak the language of power. Over the next decade, we will make a quantum leap to become a more assertive and decisive security provider, better prepared to tackle present and future threats and challenges.”

JOSEP BORRELL

High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy/
Vice-President of the European Commission

The world we face

A common strategic vision requires a shared understanding of the threats and challenges the EU will face in the foreseeable future. The EU's first- ever comprehensive threat analysis, presented in November 2022, was an important basis for starting the work on the Strategic Compass. The Compass acknowledges that the Russian military aggression against Ukraine constitutes a tectonic shift in European history. Overall, the Compass describes a European and global security landscape that is more volatile, complex and fragmented than ever due to multi-layered threats.

Global level

Principles of effective multilateralism questioned growing economic and political rivalry between global powers, climate change, competition for resources, instrumentalisation of irregular migration, and threats to the multilateral system.

Regional level

Traditional military threats and armed aggression, destabilising interference/actions of state and non-state actors, conflict, state fragility, and inter-state tensions and external influences.

Threats against the EU

State and non-state actors targeting the EU with hybrid tools, including the misuse of disruptive technologies, cyber-attacks, disinformation, and other non-military sources of malign influence, and terrorism.

THE EU AS SECURITY PROVIDER, GLOBAL ACTOR AND PARTNER IN SECURITY AND DEFENCE

A united European commitment for a strong EU in security and defence is as crucial as ever. Building on a common sense of purpose and responsibility, the Strategic Compass specifies clear targets and milestones in four work strands:

ACT

- Up to 5,000 strong EU Rapid Deployment Capacity
- Live exercises on land and at sea
- Enhance Military Mobility
- Increase effectiveness, flexibility and responsiveness of CSDP civilian missions
- Reinforce military CSDP missions and operations
- More rapid and flexible decision-making

- Spend more and better - defence spending and incentives for cooperation
- Strategic enablers and next generation capabilities
- Boost defence technological innovation to reduce strategic dependencies

INVEST

SECURE

- Hybrid Toolbox and Response Teams
- Cyber Diplomatic Toolbox and Cyber Defence Policy
