FEW Membership Elects New President, Board

President Pamela H. Richards Plans 'Level Up for Success' for More Members

PRINCETON JUNCTION, N.J. —August 16, 2022— Federally Employed Women (FEW) announced today its new national president and board of directors for 2022-2024.

Pamela H. Richards was elected and sworn in as the new national president during FEW's 2022 Virtual Leadership Summit III. She is a Supervisory Investigative Research Analyst at the Government Accountability Office (GAO), Forensic, Audit and Investigative Services (FAIS).

"FEW builds strong leaders because of the training we have and the work ethic we instill in our members," said new FEW National President Richards. "We must ensure they have the knowledge to seize those moments when called upon and the confidence to create those opportunities when they are not. We will focus on building upon what has been built so FEW will have more year-round opportunities for training, networking and professional development at the chapter and regional levels. Together, we will level up for success so we can move forward."

Richards, a military veteran and Supervisory Investigative Research Analyst for the Government Accountability Office (GAO), was recently elected to the 2022-2024 national board of directors for FEW. FEW's former DC Metro Regional Manager (who oversaw 26 chapters between Suburban Maryland, Northern Virginia, the District of Columbia and Panama) has vowed to increase the organization's visibility and make it a top women's organization in America by providing premiere training and career development.

Working for the Advancement of Women in the Government

FEW is a professional association and national grassroots initiative dedicated to “working for the advancement of women in the government.” While its main focus benefits the federal workforce, many programs and efforts support inclusion for all categories of people. Richards selected the leadership theme and tagline, “Leveling Up for Success.” Her campaign platform ran on the following economic and social issues:

- Shrinking the pay gap
- Closing the generation gap and increasing collaboration among federal workers
- Supporting military women and federal retirees
- Valuing gender inclusiveness
- Expanding organizational and membership benefits
- Strengthening and unifying FEW chapters and regions

Richards is known for leading with her heart. Previous projects include spearheading the D.C. Metro Region (DCMR) FEW Cares program and providing gas and grocery gift cards to furloughed region members during the government shutdown. She encourages members to support local small businesses, especially those owned by women. Richards has also collaborated with organizational partners to feed the homeless, redesign a men’s shelter and donate hundreds of toys to children living in poverty.

Richards graduated from Albany State University with a B.S. in Criminal Justice, a master’s degree in Public Administration with a concentration in Human Resource Management and Criminal Justice Administration and a Master of Science in Criminal Justice with a concentration in Corrections, all while being a single parent.
