

Arch L. Gleason Industry Award for Responsible Gambling Leadership

Background:

Arch Gleason was one of the first lottery directors in North America to recognize the need to help players struggling with gambling problems. For many years, problem gambling was the elephant in the room for gaming operations – no one wanted to talk about it, let alone acknowledge it.

Through Arch's actions, the issue came to the forefront of the industry, not just in a state and national venue, but across the world as well. As the 23-year president and CEO of the Kentucky Lottery Corporation, Gleason worked to establish the Kentucky Council on Problem Gambling (KYCPG), the state's National Council on Problem Gambling (NCPG) affiliate. He championed many initiatives for the cause through the North American Association of State and Provincial Lotteries (the trade organization for all North American lottery organizations) during his tenure. Arch's crowning achievement in the field was his work to establish the World Lottery Association's responsible gambling certification program during his term as the group's president. This became the first-ever responsible gambling program implemented on a global basis, taking the cause into corners of the globe that had never previously addressed the issue.

Criteria

The Gleason Award exists to recognize someone not only for his or her commitment to responsible gambling but also – much like Arch – who has demonstrated the ability to successfully manage a gaming enterprise in a socially responsible manner. While ideally the recipient will be at the senior management level, nominees can be anywhere on the corporate ladder of a gaming entity. They will embody the concept of being able to profitably operate a gambling company while incorporating responsible gambling principles across all aspects of the business.

Judging

Judging for the award will be conducted by the Kentucky Council on Problem Gambling's awards subcommittee. It will be based on information submitted on the application. This will not be an annual award – while submissions will be sought every year, the award will only be given when an applicant is deemed a worthy recipient through the application process.

Award

The honoree will commit to serve as the keynote speaker for the KYCPG's annual conference. He or she will be expected to share the organization's responsible gambling story, successes and lessons learned. To accomplish this, the honoree will be given airfare within the continental United States to the site of the KYCPG's annual conference, and will be provided accommodations in the official conference hotel. A written version of the keynote address will be shared publicly via the KYCPG website.
