

Rates Service Default Management Disclosure Notice

1. Introduction

LCH Limited (the “Clearing House”) provides a clearing service in respect of certain interest rate swaps (the “SwapClear Service”) to its members (each, a “SwapClear Member”) and a separate clearing service in respect of certain exchange-traded futures contracts (the “Listed Interest Rates Service”) to its members (each, a “Listed Interest Rates Clearing Member”). The SwapClear Service and the Listed Interest Rates Service are combined into one single service (the “Rates Service”), which shares a common default fund and default management arrangements. This Rates Service default management disclosure notice (“Notice”) is intended to provide Clearing Clients with important information regarding the Rates Service default management arrangements.

Capitalised terms used, but not defined, in this Notice shall have the meanings specified in the Clearing House’s Regulations, Procedures, Default Rules and Settlement Finality Regulations, as published at www.lch.com and amended from time to time.

2. Portfolio Margining Service

The Clearing House permits Joint Rates Service Clearing Members (i.e. SwapClear Members that are also Listed Interest Rates Clearing Members) the right to participate in its portfolio margining service (the “Portfolio Margining Service” and each such member, a “Portfolio Margining Clearing Member”), whereby Listed Interest Rates Contracts are commingled with economically-correlated SwapClear Contracts. All Contracts commingled in this way are treated as SwapClear Contracts for margining purposes. A Portfolio Margining Clearing Member may also use the Portfolio Margining Service in respect of its Client Accounts and Clearing Clients, subject to the eligibility criteria set out in the Procedures.

3. Default Management

The Clearing House has adapted its Rates Service default management process (“Rates Service DMP”) to account for the commingling of Listed Interest Rates Contracts with SwapClear Contracts, as a consequence of the Portfolio Margining Service.

3.1 Porting

If a Portfolio Margining Clearing Member becomes a Defaulter, the Clearing House will seek to port the Defaulter’s Portfolio Margined Contracts and SwapClear Contracts, and associated Collateral, that are recorded to one or more Client Account(s) to a Backup Clearing Member that is also a Portfolio Margining Clearing Member in accordance with, and subject to, the Default Rules.

3.2 Hedging and auction

The Clearing House may determine that the Contracts and Collateral recorded to a Non-Porting Client Account will not port to a Backup Clearing Member under the Default Rules and will establish one or more notional default management accounts (each, a “DMA”), to which it will transfer one or more Set of Non-Porting Contracts, in order to hedge and auction such Contracts to Non-Defaulting SCMs.

As each DMA is a notional account only, the establishment and operation of the DMAs does not involve any actual commingling of the Contracts or Collateral relating to any Clearing Clients following the Default of the Clearing Member. Rather, the use of the DMAs is to facilitate the efficient hedging and liquidation of the Defaulter's Contracts that are notionally transferred to any such DMA.

The Clearing House may determine, on a particular day, that a Set of Non-Porting Contracts from a number of Non-Porting Client Accounts will be transferred to one or more DMA(s), regardless of the Clearing Clients for whom such Contracts are held. Therefore, the Contracts that the Defaulter held for one Clearing Client may be notionally referenced in a DMA with Contracts that the Defaulter held for a different Clearing Client. Similarly, a Clearing Client that participates only in the SwapClear Service may find that the SwapClear Contracts held for it by the Defaulter are notionally referenced in a DMA with Listed Interest Rates Contracts and SwapClear Contracts held for other Clearing Clients. The Clearing House will hedge and auction the Contracts within a DMA a collective basis.

Hedging costs, changes in the net present value of Contracts, and auction gains and losses, arising in respect of Contracts referenced in a DMA will be allocated to each relevant Non-Porting Client Account in accordance with the methodology specified under Section 1.28.9 of Section 2C of the Procedures.

While the Clearing House believes that hedging and auctioning Contracts recorded to Non-Porting Client Accounts on a collective basis is efficient and cost effective, and that the method of allocation of hedging costs, losses and gains arising from Contracts referenced in the DMAs is fair, there can be no assurance that a particular Non-Porting Client Account's gains or losses will be equal to those it would have received or incurred had its Contracts been hedged and auctioned separately and not allocated to a DMA.

4. More Information

More information regarding (a) the Portfolio Margining Service (including eligibility requirements) can be found at Section 2 of Section 2C of the Procedures, and (b) the Clearing House's arrangements for hedging and auctioning Contracts recorded to Non-Porting Client Accounts can be found at Section 1.28.9 of Section 2C of the Procedures.
