

Lynn Geiser is a U.S. Army veteran. As founder and CEO of Hope4Veterans, her passion and dedication to veterans and their families comes from a history of challenges she faced after she left the military, including homelessness, unemployment, lack of resources, support, and peer help.

Hope4Veterans is a 501 c 3 nonprofit that empowers and provides hope to military women by providing resources, peer-to-peer support, and Art/Holistic groups to work on their struggles within their community. They help to educate and bring independence and stability to their families to help them become self-sufficient once again. Military women are brought together with the purpose of providing resources to gain the assistance and advocacy they need and have earned.

Lynn's dedication to working with military families and helping with employment needs has given her the ability to feel strong and important to be able to tell her recovery story. She continues to rely on the tools to conquer her goals and assistance from other military women to make HOPE4VETS the opportunity for military women to find their purpose and dreams.
